Donald Trump's Presidency: Oral Report

Donald Trump's presidency has many implications, not just for the people living in the United States, but also worldwide: Concerning diplomatic relations, trade partnerships, and even global peace and stability, the President of the United States has a great amount of influence on the entire world. Donald Trump's presidency and its effects on the world might even influence you personally, or interest you in some way.

For this unit, you have the following task:

Give a 15-minute presentation about a topic concerning Donald Trump's presidency and lead the discussion (ca. 10 minutes) after your presentation.

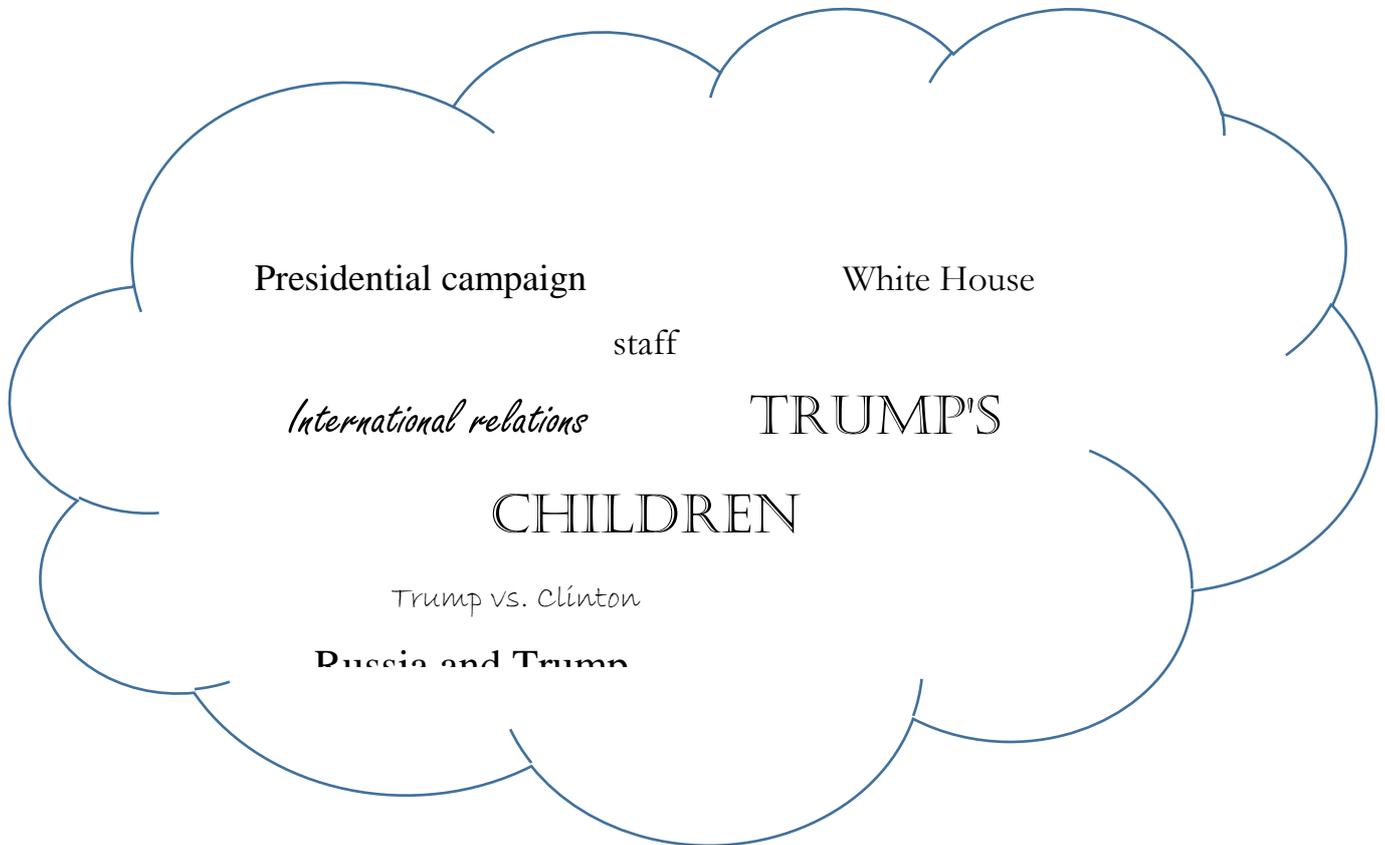

The following worksheets will help you to select a topic for your oral report concerning Donald Trump's presidency, as well as help you to prepare for and practice your report and the discussion.

Follow this checklist in order to give an excellent oral report:

Preparation Steps:	Done!
1. Choose a topic . Ideally, this should be something that you are interested in, or that has some kind of personal connection.
2. Collect information on your topic. Do not simply copy a text. Instead, collect information that you think might be relevant for your report from several sources.
3. Think about the structure of your oral report. You should have a clear and comprehensible train of thought.
4. Write your report. It is a good idea to write your report as a full text first. Remember, however, that you will not be able to use this full text during your report.
5. Take notes . You may use these note cards during your oral report.
6. Check the pronunciation of the words that are new to you. You'll find help in your dictionary or in online dictionaries.
7. Practice your oral report. It is best if you can ask someone to listen and comment on your structure, your pronunciation, and your speech tempo.
8. Prepare for the discussion. Prepare two or three discussion questions and be ready to answer any questions your fellow students and your teacher might have after your report.
9. Prepare visual aids . You might want to use a PowerPoint presentation, transparencies, or pictures.

Choosing a Topic and Collecting Information

1. Read the topics concerning Donald Trump's presidency in this word cloud. Then, brainstorm different topics that might be interesting to you and add them to the word cloud.

2. Select a topic that interests you or influences you in some way. Let your teacher know which topic you have chosen in order to make sure that every student has a different topic.
3. Do research on your topic. You may use Internet sources, but remember that they must be reputable! Fact-check the information you find by comparing sources and reviewing author information. Do not use only one source for your whole report. Include print sources as well.

Here are some suggestions for resources:

- reputable newspapers and their websites
 - academic journals
 - encyclopedias (e.g. the Encyclopædia Britannica)
4. Collect the information you find (e.g. in bullet lists) and order the information by sub-topic. Remember to save your references in a list as well!

Preparing Discussion Questions and Visual Aids

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

Remember these tips when preparing your discussion questions:

- Do not use Yes/No questions; they do not promote discussion. Instead, prepare open-ended questions. W-Questions (why, who, where, when, what...) are usually open-ended!
- Your questions should be focused on sharing opinions on the topic that you have presented.

1. Prepare two or three discussion questions. Write them down here:

VISUAL AIDS

1. Read the following chart of Do's and Don'ts concerning visual aids in presentations.

DO	DON'T
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Use visual aids effectively - Make sure that the visual aids can be seen by everyone - Use effective PowerPoint slides that highlight the main points 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Distract from your presentation with visual aids - Use small fonts/ small pictures that cannot be seen by everyone - List everything you say in too many PowerPoint slides

REMEMBER: Visual aids are supposed to support your presentation, NOT take attention away from it.

2. There are many different types of visual aids. Choose which of the following visual aids might make your report more interesting and effective. If you choose to use technological visual aids, make sure that they work before your presentation.

PowerPoint	Video	Posters
Flipchart	Handout	Transparencies
Whiteboard/ Blackboard	Pictures
