Listening: A holiday in New York a) A visit to the Empire State Building

Marie Winter was on holiday with her parents and her brother Mike in New York. It was their second day and they wanted to visit the Empire State Building. When they arrived, Marie took one of the brochures at the information desk.

While her mum was getting the tickets, Marie read out some information on the brochure:

It says here that opening times are 8 am to 2 pm so we've got plenty of time.

Prices for adults are 29$ and children only pay 23$. Oh, but that's aged 6 -12. So we both have to pay full price.

Tickets can be bought on the second floor at the ticket office.

There's some information here on the building...

It took 3,400 workers to complete the building and today about 15, 000 people work here. Every year there's a race up to the 86th floor with the record holder having a time of 9 minutes and 33 seconds. Wow! We'll I'm taking the elevator up!

The Empire State Building has been used in many movies such as 'King Kong' and 'The Day After Tomorrow'....

Oh, let's just go up to the observatory deck where we can get a fantastic view of the city! We can read all this later at the hotel...

Marie's mum bought the tickets and then joined her family at the queue for the elevator. Suddenly she shouted:

Oh, no! I can't find my purse! Someone must have stolen it.

She checked all her pockets and ran back to the ticket office to see if she had left it there, but the purse was gone. A pickpocket must have taken it, she thought. Fortunately, she didn't have much money in the purse and had left her passport in the hotel safe.

Then there was an announcement! "This is a call for Mrs. Winter. Please come to the information desk on the ground floor."

Mrs. Winter was so happy that someone had found her purse. Next time she would be much more careful with her belongings!
